CATTLE FEEDERS' MEETING MARCH 19

Visit of State Experiment Station Experts to Madison is Postponed a Week

Demonstration of beef cattle feeding and meeting of prominent cattle men which had been called to be held here next Saturday, March 12, has been postponed until Saturday, March 19, according to a message which Charles H. Jett had from the State Experiment Station at Lexington on Wednesday.

A delegation of cattle feeding experts from the University will be on hand, headed by M. O. Hughes. Cattle feeders and others interested in the preservation and upbuilding of the live stock industry of Kentucky are urged to attend this meeting, for undoubtedly they will hear something to their advantage. Mr. Jett expects to have full details within few days as to the program of the day, and it will be published when received.

MARRIED MOTHER TO SPITE DAUGHTER

Now Love's Young Dream is Over and Autumn and Spring-time Will Separate

Chicago, March 10—The romance of a boy and a woman old enough to be his mother went on the shrubs today.

"This is the result of folly. I must have been crazy when I submitted myself to the marriage," declared Winston Phillips, 10 years old, son of Dr. William Phillips, dentist in the Boston building, Louisville, as he sat in his room in the Auditorium Hotel today, reminiscent of becoming the husband of Mrs. Luella Gaines Phillips, 42 years old, mother of four children and widow of J. Russell Gaines, former Jefferson county engineer.

"I was engaged to Susan Gaines, 19 years old, daughter of my present wife," he said. "But the cloudburst last Friday to Shellyville, Ky., ended that."

"I realize I have made a mistake," said Mrs. Phillips. "I intend to return home in a few days. I first decided to go through with the honeymoon, but my love for my children is too dominant."

The handsome young husband apparently was not perturbed by his wife's declaration. His large brown eyes centered upon a design in the carpet as though his mind reflected those happy days he had passed with Susan before becoming infatuated with the mother.

"I'd like to see my wife go back to her home, but there is a question of doubt whether Susan and her three sisters will regard her as a mother now. They were disengaged when we first mentioned our contemplated wedding. I am sure the wound we have caused them is too deep to have become healed in these few days."

"It is merely the old story," he said.

"This is the greatest experience I have encountered and one which I will profit by in the future. I will never return to my home in Louisville. The humiliation upon facing the daughter would be unbearable."

Phillips was asked if he really loved the woman he married. "I refuse to answer such a personal question," he said, "but as far as I can now appraise myself I married the mother to conquer the daughter."

The latter and her sisters, he said, strongly objected to the marriage of their mother and Phillips.

"The reason they objected to the marriage was because they said they never would call me 'daddy.' When we told the daughter to whom I had been engaged that her mother and I were married, she screamed hysterically and fell to the floor in a faint. Besides being engaged to the daughter, I was also engaged to another 19-year-old girl who is prominent in society circles in Louisville.

"The breaking of the engagement with the other girl is really of very little consequence for I never cared a great deal for her."

However, I regret the pain I have caused Susan, and hope at some later time to be able to make reparation."

Regarding his real estate project, Phillips said: "Although my wife is worth approximately $100,000, I will accept no financial assistance from her."

"I don't intend to ever try and resume friendship with the daughter Susan. It would be useless. She told me the night her mother and I eloped that she hated me and would never speak to me again."

FARMER IS HELD UP BY YOUTHS IN CLARK

Winchester, Ky., March 10—Charles Rogers, of the Ecton pike was the victim of one of the bold attempts at hold-up in the county in many months. While returning to his home about six o'clock, riding a horse, he was held up at the Stoner Bridge, 7 miles from Winchester, by two young men about twenty years of age, who demanded his money and his belongings. Mr. Rogers had nothing but a pocket knife, which he handed over. They later gave it back. According to Rogers they held him for about 15 minutes and after they found that he did not have any money requested him to give them a check. Upon advising them that he did not have any blank checks they instructed him to continue on his journey. One of them wore overalls, tan shoes and blue serge cap, the other was wearing a pea green suit and hat and English walking shoes. Both were slender.

TRAIN CREW JUMP IN FEAR OF WRECK

Danville, Ky., March 10—Southern Railway freight train crew, composed of Conductor Brinkley Brakeman S. Williams and O. C. West, and Engineer Olney McWhorter and Fireman S. G. Minor, had a blood curdling experience when the air brakes on their train failed to operate at Alpine south of here. The train was going full speed down grade when the electric block signals showed red.

The men worked frantically to stop the train, but it continued to gain speed through its own momentum. The possible crash with another train and the death or injury of crews loomed before them. McWhorter, Minor and West, who were on the engine, jumped. Minor landed on his head. His nose was broken and 18 gashes were cut in his face. McWhorter and West were also injured.

Brinkley and Williams who were in the caboose, remained with the train until it encountered an upgrade, and came to a stop a mile further on, only a few feet distant from another train headed in the opposite direction and which had stopped when the signals showed warning.

The injured men were brought to Danville for treatment after having remained several hours on the roadside before they were located.

$600,000 RAISE ON MADISON TAXPAYERS

State Tax Commission Slaps on Another Local Increase of Over Half a Million

Notwithstanding the fact that County Tax Commissioner Ben R. Powell's books show an increase of taxable property in Madison county over half a million dollars greater than the year before, the State Tax Commission at Frankfort, has ordered the Board of Tax Supervisors to slap on another $600,000 raise to Madison county taxpayers. And this too in the fact of the fact that farm lands have greatly decreased in value within the past six months.

County Judge W. K. Price and Deputy Tax Commissioner Will W. Adams, went to Frankfort Thursday to take up the matter with the Tax Commission and endeavor to show them the absolute injustice of such an increase at the present time. The assessment of Madison as completed by Tax Commissioner Powell, figured $26,312,170, an increase of $517,680 over the preceding year, which was $25,794,490. And now the State Tax Commission says Madison taxpayers must pay still more taxes on $600,000 additional.

Judge Price has named eight supervisors from the various magisterial districts of the county to pass upon the assessment. The local tax supervisors, however, are completely at the mercy of the State Tax Commission and under the law are compelled to obey its mandates. But one county in Kentucky has ever "gone to the mat" with the State Tax Commission and that was Fayette. There the officials defied the state board to such an extent that a compromise was finally reached, it was given out.

The supervisors named by Judge Price for Madison county are Messrs. N. B. Deatherage, B. E. Million, Waller Bennett, C. L. Tipton, C. F. Park, T. B. Stephens, Hargis Brandenburg, and T. J. Jones.

HARDING APPOINTS A LIFE-LONG FRIEND

By Associated Press

Washington, March 10—D. R. Crissinger, of Marion, O., was nominated today to be Comptroller of the Currency, to succeed John Skelton Williams. Crissinger is a lawyer and banker, and Harding's life-long friend.

MY, BUT THEY'RE PIE HUNGRY

Washington, March 10—The deluge of patronage recommendations has engulfed President Harding ever since he took office, reached a new high water mark today. The executive wing of the White House was crowded with visitors to talk about appointments, ranging from Ambassadors to postmasters. During the morning standing room was at premium in Secretary Christian's office.

A BILLY SUNDAY JOKE

In his sermon at Cincinnati Wednesday night, Billy Sunday told a joke to emphasize his argument for bigger collections. It was about an old farmer, who, after much urging, had been induced to give $5 to the collection in a church.

A few days later the old farmer declared the Lord had ruined him after he had made the Lord a present of the money.

"He let my pigs get out last night—He's ruined me," said the farmer.

"I know you can't expect God Almighty to sit up all night and watch your pig-pen all night for $5, can you?" he was told.

MOUNTAIN SCHOOL BURNS AT ANNVILLE

News was received here Thursday from Annville, Jackson county, that the large seminary there had been destroyed by fire. There were no details given in regard to the cause of the fire or amount of the loss.

The loss must have been quite heavy, however, for the institution was one of the best equipped in the mountain section, with many buildings and several dormitories. It is expected by those who are connected with the institution that perhaps the loss is not complete, as several of the buildings were separated by short distances and the fire may not have destroyed them.

W. W. Worthington is head of the work of the schools there.

Annville lies a mile from Bond, the seat of the big Bond-Foley Lumber Company. The Jackson County Fair is held at Annville each year.

Funeral Services of Miss Lanter

The funeral services of Miss Clara Lanter, who died in Ashville, Tuesday morning, will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the First Baptist church in Richmond, conducted by her pastor, Dr. O. Olin Green. Interment will be in Richmond cemetery.

RUSSIAN CAPITAL SEEMS ISOLATED

By Associated Press

Copenhagen, March 10—Telegрафen dispatches say there was virtually no firing yesterday between the combatant troops in the Petrograd area. The stream of fugitives from Russia into Finland has almost ceased, indicating Petrograd is isolated.

ON OTHER FLOORS

Carrollton—Sales on the market were 186,095 pounds and $16.65 was the average.

Frankfort—The tobacco sales here totaled 110,000 pounds, averaging $12 per 100 pounds, and ranging to $34 per hundred.

Lexington—Prices ranged as high as $67 a hundred from less than $1 a hundred on the market, which was somewhat stronger when the quality of the leaf offered was taken into consideration.

Receipts were light, showing that the market is beginning to fall off, and warehousemen believe the rush season is over.

Paris—The Paris tobacco market, quality considered, was the best of the season. From the present indication, for the first time since the inception of the market this season, the close will see the price higher than at the opening.

The Bourbon house sold 134,065 pounds of very low grade tobacco at an average of $11.51.

Maysville—The Maysville tobacco market scored another record-breaking price sale when scores of crops went over the $30 average, one crop at the Growers' House selling for $44 while at the Farmers and Planters house, Fagan and Botts, of Bracken county sold 2,745 pounds at $18.82 per 100. Total sales were $42,560 pounds.

Shelbyville—Market strong. Star House sold 338,100 pounds at an average of $16.89. Prices ranged from $1 to $80.

EXPECT TO RESUME SCHOOL ON MONDAY

Enough Rooms Have Been Offered, It Is Believed, to House All Caldwell Students

Although a number of the youngsters were hoping there would be no more school until Caldwell graded school is rebuilt, they're going to be disappointed.

The City School Board and Superintendent Payne plan to start studies again next Monday. Many of the churches of town have offered use of their Sunday School rooms. Four grades will be accommodated at the courthouse if the fiscal court endorses County Judge Price's offer.

The School Board met Thursday morning with Superintendent Payne. The city ministers and others met with them. The situation was thoroughly canvassed.

The board and Superintendent Payne are very anxious to complete school work and complete the term's curriculum so that promotions of the pupils in their studies may not be disarranged.

A number of the teachers offered their Sunday School rooms outright; others will refer their offers to their church boards and advise what may be done. As tentative offered and arranged, it is planned to take care of most of the teaching through the following offers of accommodations, if finally approved:

Two rooms at the Methodist church.

One room at the First Baptist church.

One room at the Second Presbyterian church, perhaps two.

One room at the Second Christian church.

One room may be obtained at the First Christian church.

One room at Eastern Normal.

Four rooms at the court house.

Two rooms at the Madison High building at present and more later.

President Payne has called a meeting of the faculty of the city schools to be held Saturday afternoon at Madison High building at 3 o'clock. Plans will be made for continuing the work. Due announcement will be made a little later just when the various grades will be held.

Exact information as to the amount of insurance available as a result of the fire early Wednesday morning has not yet been compiled. Several local insurance men who have the school's policies are out of the city, and until they return and get together it will not be known the exact amount. School Board officials say that their figures show that about $25,000 was carried on the burned buildings. It is figured that $100,000 will be necessary to put the school back into habitable shape again.

The flames continued to eat into the guts of the building for several hours Wednesday morning. Constant pouring of water into the debris seemed to have quenched it before noon. However, smoke and flames were noticed late in the afternoon and the fire department went out again at supper time and gave the ruins a further drenching.

No new developments have occurred to throw further light on the cause of the fire. Opinion seems to be unanimous that the blaze started in the furnace room through some mischance.

Means Crop Insurance

By treating their seed potatoes some time between now and the time of planting, farmers will be practicing crop insurance and preventing soil infection from the common scab, rhizoctonia or "black scurf" and "black leg," according to a statement which has been issued by Dr. W. D. Vallean, plant pathologist of the State College. The sublimate treatment, the standard method of which is given in Dr. Vallean's statement, is the most satisfactory method of controlling these potato seed pests.

The standard solution of corrosive sublimate used in the treatment is made by dissolving four ounces of the material in a few gallons of hot water and then diluting the solution to 30 gallons. This solution may be used for treating four lots of potatoes, but different lengths of time are necessary if the material is used more than once.

The standard length of treatment is one hour for the first time, one and one-quarter hours for the second time, one and one-half hours for the third time and two times for the fourth and last time.

Seed potatoes may be treated any time during the winter, preferably during the period that they are dormant. The treatment must be applied before the seeds are cut for planting. Rotten or scabby potatoes should not be treated or used for seed.

Since the corrosive sublimate corrodes metal only wooden, concrete or some non-metal container should be used with the solution.

Alkaline soils which have produced scabby potatoes before are particularly adapted to carrying the scab from one year to another. Seed treatment under such conditions will not control the scab. It will, however, prevent scab from entering alkaline soils if it is not already present.

The one thing needed in this part of the country is more grass and clover. The same is true of most of the country. Let us sow grass, raise feed crops, get good livestock and feed those crops. No section that has followed this policy steadily has ever gone broke and few who have stuck to it have ever been sold out by the sheriff and few ever will be.

Some farmers talk of cutting out their crops as the supply is greater than the demand. It seems that farmers must produce to the limit. To fail to do so at a time like this is to see their business go down. To have their income decreased they must live harder. If there is any cutting out done let it be done on tobacco—something that is not essential to good living.

To Greet an Early Easter

VARIOUS brands of weather are sure to be delivered on Easter day in different sections of the country, but whatever the weather the day will be greeted with springtime millinery. Every year proves that even in the extreme north women anticipate the spring and brave wintry skies with cheerful headwear that belongs to the new season. This year hats make it easier than ever for them to follow this inclination for many of the new models are made of brilliant millinery fabrics and of braids and silks—often in combination—that are not too sumptuous to face a snowfall. They are in lively, lustrous colors and are dedicated to spring.

Fear hats out of the five pictured here make a safe choice in Easter headwear for dwellers in the north. At the top of the group the hat at the left is made entirely of faille silk, in this instance, turquoise blue, but also shown in other colors. It has a sectional crown and a soft brim, the latter entirely of corded silk and extended into a loop and knot at the right side. A gleaming ball of rhinestones forms the head of a pin-thrust in the loop. Another hat of corded silk, at the right, has a soft, upturned brim with workroom-made ornaments set about it.

At the center of the group an all-black, wide-brimmed model shows how effectively hair braid in an airy brim may be joined to a crown of celophane. The brim is irregular in width and very graceful; there is an odd, shiny ornament set against the crown of this mid-summer night's dream in millinery. One of the new lustrous fabrics in henna color makes the bright hat with long odd feather quills, making a spirited brim trimming—oddities in trimming are the order of the day, it seems, and another example of this appears in the satin hat that finishes the group. This model has an eccentric brim covered with rows of narrow braid, showing a cut-out portion at the left side. It is one of many models with a sectional crown and its trimming is a brush-like ornament of feathers.

Saved From Marriage to Mexican Criminal

Kept practically a prisoner behind the barred windows of her room or closely guarded by her formidable old dina, Consuela Velasco, young and beautiful, looked forward miserably to her marriage to Don Manuel Morales. Her father's will was law, as she said, and, though Morales was ugly and villainous, he was a man of great wealth and influence in Mexico, and Senor Rafael Velasco was determined that Consuela should marry him. The story is told in "Diamonds Afloat," featuring one of Richmond's favorite actors of the screen, Earle Williams. Beatrice Burnham plays the part of the beautiful girl. Mr. Williams appears as a New York clubman, who upsets the old greaser's plans and marries the girl himself. See the beautiful way the story is told at the local theaters Thursday (today).

Miss Adams Daring

Kathryn Adams, charming and fearless young actress, has the feminine lead in "The Best of Luck," Drury Lane melodrama, to appear in Richmond Saturday. Miss Adams is the slender, beautiful, blond actress who played the leading role with William Farnum in "Riders of the Purple Sage." She has appeared in several well-known master pictures, including some of Earle Williams' best. She is a St. Louis girl. She went to New York to take vocal lessons, became a show girl at the Manhattan opera house and then went into movies.

Introducing New Models in Millinery

For Sports, Trotter, Travel and Formal Wear

The mode in millinery is many sided, and expressed in varying terms. And in the interpretation of the mode Embry & Co. present their usual original style-translations. Charming hats have been developed in georgette crepe and crepe de chine and in straw, satin and taffeta. Soft, graceful Capeline hats are introduced. Exquisite transparent hats are of lace, erin, and maline.

The Whims of Brims in the New Spring Hats

They're as fickle and as hard to follow as the moods of their fair wearers themselves.

Now, they're up, with a bit of trimming poised perilously on the brim. Now they're drooping demurely to shade the eyes, and follow the line of the sweeping plume that brushes the shoulder.

And suddenly there's a brim that tips up and dips down, without rhyme or reason, except that it's more charming that way.

Price Resigns At Panama

Danville, Ky., March 10—Senator A. O. Stanley presented to the State Department the resignation of Wm. Jennings Price, of Danville, as Minister to Panama. Mr. Price requested that the Senator present the resignation in person. Mr. Price, a native of Lancaster, Ky., was appointed Minister to Panama in 1913 and he took up the reforms planned but not completed, by General Goethals, and to this end he was given unusual authority for a minister. The driving of saloons from prescribed districts and the supervision of elections to insure fairness were among the reforms carried out during his tenure of office there.

DR. MYERS TELLS OF WARMER WINTERS

And Many Other Things Few of Us Know About This Good Old World of Ours

Editor Daily Register:

I noticed an article in the Register recently—an Associated Press article, in which it was stated by some one that our winters are gradually growing warmer, while someone else contradicted the statement by saying that on the whole our winters averaged up about the same, or words to that effect.

The fact is, our winters on the northern hemisphere, actually are growing warmer, and eventually there will come a time when the difference between winter and summer on the northern half of our globe will practically be annihilated. This will be due to the eccentricity of the earth's orbit and what is known as the precession of the equinoxes.

In order to make this clear to the reader who is not a student of astronomy, it may be well to explain that the glacial period, or what geologists call the Great Ice Age, occurs at long intervals. The last glacial period passed away some nine in ten thousand years ago, altho remnants of it still remain in the high Alps and in the Arctic regions.

There are two kinds of winters in both northern and southern hemispheres. One is the annual winter, due to the tilting of the earth's axis on its journey around the sun. The other is the Great Winter, due to the eccentricity of the earth's orbit.

Now, it must be understood that in passing around the sun, the earth does not describe a circle. It describes an ellipse. An ellipse has two diameters—a major and a minor.

The sun apparently moves across the major axis.

The fact, however, is that it is not the sun, but the ellipse that moves. At present we are much nearer the sun in winter than we are in summer because the sun is nearer the one side of the major axis than the other. But, as the earth's rotation on its axis does not coincide with the plane of its orbit, but is tilted at an angle of 23½ degrees, it happens that our northern hemisphere is tilted away from the sun in winter, when we are nearest to it, hence we do not receive its direct rays.

In winter, when we are farthest away from the sun, the northern hemisphere is tilted toward it and we receive its direct rays.

As a result we have neither the extreme cold in winter nor heat in summer that we might have were conditions different. But conditions are gradually changing.

Owing to the protuberance of the earth along the equatorial regions, the attraction of the sun and moon tends to pull the axis aside and make it describe a conical movement like that of the axis of a top around the vertical.

Hence each pole points success-ively to different stars. In other words, the north pole describes a complete circle every 21,000 years. As a result the geographic and electric north poles are never identical. The needle of the compass does not point to the geographic north pole, but several degrees to one side of it.

At present the winter in our northern hemisphere coincides with the earth's approach to the sun, or perihelion. 12,000 or 14,- 000 years hence our winters will take place when the earth is approaching the farthest point of its orbit from the sun—the aphelion.

Dr. Croll, in “Climate and Time,” says: “The mean distance of the sun at present is 92,400,000 miles.”

(That means that we are 90,847,-

680 miles from the sun in the winter, and something like 94,215,- 900 miles in the summer.) “When the eccentricity (of the earth's orbit) is at its superior limit, the distance of the sun from the earth, when the latter is in the aphelion of its orbit, is no less than 99,584,100 miles, and when in the perihelion it is only 85,215,- 900 miles. The earth is, therefore 14,368,200 miles farther from the sun in the former than in the latter position. The direct heat of the sun being inversely as the square of the distance, it follows that the amount of heat received by the earth in these two positions will be as 19 to 26. Owing to the present eccentricity of the earth's orbit its distance from the sun during our northern winter is 90,847,680 miles. Suppose now that, from the precession of the equinoxes, winter in our northern hemispheres should happen when the earth is in the aphelion of its orbit at a time when the orbit is at its greatest eccentricity;

the earth would then be 87,364,20 miles farther from sun in winter than it is at present. The direct heat of the sun would, therefore, be one-fifth less and during the summer one-fifth greater than now.

This will be due to the eccentricity of the earth's orbit and in the pre-cession of the equinoxes.

It is evident that the eccentricity

of the earth's orbit will be gradually increasing.

It is evident that the eccentricity

of the earth's orbit will be

gradually increasing.

It is evident that the eccentricity

of the earth's orbit will be

gradually increasing.

WANTS U. S. TO TAKE TURKISH MANDATE

Professor Says We Could Operate All at Less Cost Than Relief Work

By Associated Press

Lexington, Ky., March 10.—What Turkey needs today is a thorough revision of its government system and the best way to get this would be for the United States to take a mandate over all of Turkey, in the opinion of L. A. Scipio, of Pittsburg, Pa., professor of engineering at Robert College, Constantinople. He recently visited the University of Kentucky in the interest of tests being made there for the United States Bureau of Standards with which he is connected during a year's leave of absence from the college. He was in Turkey throughout the world war.

"The United States could take a mandate over Turkey and operate the entire country, Armenia and all, at less cost than it now takes to do relief work there," he said, in discussing the situation. "This should be done and the government system of the country gradually revised. Revision of the government is the pressing need today. In the way I have mentioned a government could be worked out in a few years that would be for the benefit of all of the people and in which all classes would have a say."

"The United States could maintain the basis of an army and gradually work out an army for the country in which all would have an equal interest. The rank and file should be citizens of the country, but during the formative period the control and officering should be in the hands of the Americans."

"The half has not been told regarding the massacres and deportations of Armenians and Greeks, according to Prof. Scipio. "If one-tenth of the information available ever was made public, it would cause a change in the minds of many people in this country who believe that the reports of massacres and deportations have been overdrawn," he said.

The Turk, according to Prof. Scipio, is a fine fellow when you first meet him and is of a high order of intelligence when it comes to "painting his side white." But the only real progress the country the country has made in many years has been through the Armenians and the Greeks who are the real backbone of the country. The Turkish officials are essentially "gentlemen" but the entire government is rotten to the core, according to the professor.

The Allies made a mistake, he believes, when, immediately after the world war, they delayed putting into effect the armistice terms in Turkey. This gave time for sentiment in the interior to consolidate against acceptance of Washington, March 10—Comprehensive data on the state of Kentucky was issued Wednesday by the Bureau of the Census. Regarding density of population the Bulletin said that the average number of inhabitants to the square mile in Kentucky in 1920 was 60.1 as against 57 in 1910 and 53.4 in 1900. There has been a pronounced drift of population from the farming districts to the urban centers. On this the bulletin said: "The proportion of the population of Kentucky living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 21.8 in 1900 to 24.3 in 1910 and 26.2 in 1920."

WRIGLEY'S RULE FOR RESULTS

What William Wrigley doesn't know about advertising will have to be learned later. He took a nickel's worth of merchandise, added manufacturing skill, added selling genius, then added advertising.

And William Wrigley has chewing-gummed a flock of fancy fortunes out of the simple rule that he states thus:

"Tell 'em quick and tell 'em often. Advertising is like running a furnace—you've got to keep on shoveling coal. Once you stop stoking the fire goes out."

You notice that William Wrigley does not let the fire go out.
